

New Sunbrella Awning Fabrics at a Glance

Silica

Silica offers a linen textural effect resulting from the use of two types of yarns – slub (varying thickness) and marl (two colors of yarn twisted together.) The face and the back of Silica feature different visual effects, creating an additional design option for awning fabrication.

Tresco

Tresco is what is known as a bird's eye weave, a term that is based on the visual effect of small dots of color in this textural fabric. Drawing its inspiration from a similar look in furniture upholstery, Tresco creates a unique look from a combination of yarn colors.

Eastland

Eastland is a large scale mirror stripe that integrates a tweed-like textural effect. Through a variety of colorways, awnings created with Eastland can complement virtually any environment, from lakeside to heavily forested.

Westfield

The Westfield stripe is similar to Eastland, but with smaller scale stripes in different colorways. A tweed texture has been incorporated into this pattern, offering a classic complement to its pinstripe effect.

Morris

The use of slub yarns gives the Morris stripe a textural effect and distinctive colors. Mid-scale stripes in complementary colors result in a mirrored layout that is classic, yet freshly updated for contemporary tastes.

Essex

Essex is the most classic of the new Sunbrella awning stripes, featuring alternating bars of solid colors and varying dimensions of pinstripes. Colorways give this stripe a distinctly environmental look of rich green or brown.

Manhattan

Manhattan is a large scale bar stripe, offering a look that is both clean and bold. Colorway selections for Manhattan are among the most popular Sunbrella colors and complement this simple classic design.

Ginza

Ginza is a departure from classic awning styling, with small repeating stripes in alternating colors against solid grounds of dark brown or black. This new stripe resembles the apparel look of espadrille reinterpreted for awnings.

Solid colors

Rust is based on the popular Tuscan look, offering an update that has a rich red-orange colorcast ideal for completing furniture upholstery inside and out. Mineral Blue is a clean, mid-tone blue, while Basil is a soft green addition to the Sunbrella color palette. Sunbrella's new solid colors are offered in a Canvas construction, resulting in a subtle textural effect that adds richness and dimension.
